

HOW TO DETECT AND PREVENT FRAUD

IN A RECENT STUDY OF FRAUD,

small organizations (100 employees or fewer) actually suffer larger median losses from fraud than large organizations (with 10,000 plus employees). In fact, small companies are over 100 times more vulnerable to fraud than their largest counterparts.

Packer Thomas can help you assess your risks and create safeguards.

WHAT IS FRAUD?

Fraud can take on many forms:

- Asset misappropriation or embezzlement
- Stealing money or merchandise
- Taking kickbacks or bribes from suppliers or customers
- Providing false financial information on the company to governmental agencies, creditors or investors
- Cheating on expense accounts
- Claiming overtime when it is not due

PRIME CONDITIONS AND WARNING SIGNS OF FRAUD

PRIME CONDITIONS:

- Pressure—Management or other employees may be under pressure to achieve financial goals.
- Opportunity—Absence of controls or ineffective controls. Often it is trusted individuals who perpetrate fraud.
- Rationalization—The individual believes that the fraudulent act agrees with their personal code of ethics.

WARNING SIGNS:

- Big spenders: Employees who seem to be spending outside of their means probably are. One cause of this could be theft.
- People with financial problems: Just like big spenders, people with financial problems may be more motivated to commit occupational fraud.
- Rule breakers: People who ignore company rules and regulations set a bad example and can trigger fraud throughout the company.

We can assist in the calculation and documentation of any potential economic loss or damages.

WHAT ARE EXAMPLES OF FRAUD?

- Your longtime bookkeeper has been writing unauthorized company checks to himself/herself and concealing them through inappropriate bookkeeping practices.
- Your buyer has been purchasing items with the company's money for his/her own side business.
- A trusted employee has been pocketing cash sales and not recording them.
- Payroll clerk writing checks to fictitious employee and then cashing the checks personally.
